Petty Raceway Announces New Four Day Summer Shootout Event

(RIVER GLADE, NB - December 21st, 2018) - Management of Petty International Raceway are excited to announce the creation of a new event for the 2019 season. The inaugural Petty International Raceway Summer Shootout will see four action packed days of racing action on the River Glade, New Brunswick oval. The racing kicks off on Thursday, August 1st and runs to Sunday, August 4th and will feature racing action in the Bandolero (Beginner, Bandits and Outlaws), Mini Stock, Street Stock and Late Model Sportsman divisions.

Modelled similar to major stock car racing events south of the border, the Petty International Raceway Summer Shootout will feature event champions with points being tabulated for each division. The Bandolero division will run 25-lap features with the Beginner Bandoleros having 20-lap feature contests over the four days. Regular distance Mini Stock and Street Stock features on the week will be 30-laps with the Late Model Sportsman class having 35-lap features throughout the Petty International Raceway Summer Shootout.

"We are excited to bring something new to the Maritime racing scene with the Petty International Raceway Summer Shootout," said Ellen Smith of Petty International Raceway on the announcement of the event. "After experiencing these kinds of events in Florida and North Carolina, we thought it would be something unique to offer our race teams and our race fans in the Maritimes."

The 100-lap extended distance races for the Late Model Sportsman (Saturday, August 3rd) and Street Stock (Sunday, August 4th) divisions will also count towards the season long point championships. The Mini Stock division will run a Twin 50 feature on Friday, August 2nd as their headline feature of the week.

With the Petty International Raceway Summer Shootout leading into a long weekend and other tracks within the province traditionally being idle, the early announcement of this event gives teams and fans a chance to plan for the weekend well in advance. While a number of tracks in the Maritimes

Comedy at Large

A group of salesmen at a large automotive dealership dreaded the monthly round up. That's when the sales manager totaled up the car sales for the month, who had the most sales followed by congratulations, but a private closed door one on one chat with the non-performer. The sales manager showed his authority and was rather intimidating if your sales weren't up to snuff. One morning, at a local coffee shop, the salesmen were ready to start another day when talk suddenly turned to "what would I do if I won the lottery?" One salesman, who had a total dislike for the manager, said that the day after he won, he would go to the boss's office and pee on his desk. They all laughed except for one fella who announced....if it was me, I'd hire somebody to go do it!

It was said that the late US President, Richard Nixon and compliments were a kind of natural oxymoron. There's the story of the time that Nixon returned to the big meeting at Camp David and announced to all....hey, I scored a 126! Secretary of State, Henry Kissinger, never one to miss a chance to score some brownie points, muttered...Congratulation Mr. President, sounds like your golf game is improving! Nixon glowered at him and snapped back...darn you, I was bowling!

ELGIN NEWS!

The following is an edited article titled "CANADIANIZATION" written for the Home and Country, the provincial paper of NBWI in January of 1933 by Mrs. Coy Goggin of the Elgin Branch.

"Canadianization is a big word, the name of a subject that is far-reaching; it stretches from shore to shore. I will take it for granted that we all love Canada as a home, for where can we find natural scenery to compare with that of Canada? And as for climate, we have a variety of climate to suit all. Both the climate and scenery are traits that need no improvement, even had we the power to do so. But I would like to deal with the subject, Canadianization, from four different standpoints, namely:

- 1st - The fostering of a love for Canada and things Canadian.
- 2nd - Pride in Canada's achievements, both past and present.
- 3d - The building up of true citizenship among old and new Canadians alike.
- 4th - Preserving to some extent the history of our pioneers.

In fostering a love of Canada, it is well to begin with the flag of our country, the emblem of Loyalty. It is our duty to see that our school is provided with a flag, and that it is flown from the school flagpole every fine day and on all public holidays. Ask the teacher to explain from time to time the object of the different colors.

This brings me to the second point, pride in Canada's achievements, both past and present. Perhaps the best way to bring this about is to keep before the minds of the people by means of concerts, pageants, etc., the struggle for responsible government, the reason for Confederation and the benefits derived from it, the growth of our country and the hardships endured and the sacrifices made in bringing this about. How Canada responded when the Mother Country needed help in the Great War. All these things should be kept fresh in the minds of old and young alike."

Four Day Summer Shootout

have run Friday night shows, the Petty International Raceway Summer Shootout will be the first event in well over a decade in the region to run a Thursday night racing card.

"This is a pretty sweet deal," said reigning Petty Raceway Late Model Sportsman champion Brady Creamer when first hearing of the event. "This has the potential to be the next big marquee stock car event in the Province. Hopefully we're able to grab a checkered flag on the August long weekend!"

"This is really going to put us in the Mini Stock division to the test," said Rob Poirier, the defending Mini Stock champion at both Petty International Raceway and Douglastown's Speedway Miramichi. "It will test drivers fatigue and consistency over the week. It will test the cars and their reliability. It will test the team's ability to have the car ready to go for the next race the next day. I like it!"

"It's great to see a race track supporting young racers in Atlantic Canada and putting on an event like this," commented Owen Mahar on the announcement. Mahar, the 2018 INEX

Bandolero Bandit Canadian champion, has raced in INEX sanctioned events such as this one in both Florida and Texas. "With four days of INEX National Points on the line along with the chance to be the inaugural Petty International Raceway Summer Shootout champion, hopefully we see a number of traveling teams come to our neck of the woods to compete on the high banks!"

There will be payouts of cash/prizes for all four divisions. Registration for teams will open on March 1st at a cost of $100 per car for the event with prizes for early registrations up to the deadline of July 24th. Event pit passes will be sold at $100 or $30 per day and extra practice time will be available at $50/day or $100 for the week of the event. Grandstand admission is $15 for adults and $10 for youth eight to 15 years of age with children seven and under admitted free for each day of the Petty International Raceway Summer Shootout.

More information surrounding the event will be available as the event nears.

For complete, up-to-date information on Petty International Raceway, please visit PettyInternationalRaceway.com,

Happy New Year to everybody. The Elgin eco Association will continue its work this new year. Communities are the back bone of the cities, without rural communities nobody will be able to put food on the table or can enjoy the great outdoors. It takes an effort from all community members year after year to be able to move forward with the many programs. The Elgin Eco Association is grateful for the many grants it can access. As with everything, new programs that sound good and look good need community support. Therefor we hope in this new year that members caring for their community are willing to come join and support our organization. Some do it from afar, these people love the Elgin area but live in either Ontario ,BC or the States. We are embarking on a new awareness campaign. This will help to bring the many exceptional beautiful places in Elgin to a larger audience. It will also increase the number of visitors to this area. It is extremely important to save wilderness areas for future generations. The Elgin Eco Association likes to be part of that vision and actively be involved to make that happen. You do not need to live in Elgin to be part of the EEA ,if you care about nature, this might be a group for you

No meeting was held in December but our first meeting of the next year will be January 3 7 pm in the Elgin Maple tree café. We hope to see you there

Gardening Success

By Mark and Ben Cullen

somewhat. Be informed about your natural environment as this will help you make intelligent plant buying decisions later.

2. Design around Nature. Once you have taken note of what Mother Nature has given to you, consider how you can use it. For instance, frame a great view using plants. And avoid obliterating a good view by planting a tree that will grow through it.

If you have a naturally rocky terrain, incorporate some large rocks into your landscape.

Do you have elevations to deal with? Use them to your advantage to create natural beauty at the bottom of a decline, or at the top of an incline. Either way, you will improve the view that you currently live with by drawing the eye to nature, rather than letting a benign or unnatural feature dominate the landscape.

3. Where do you want to go? The most important decision you will make regarding the design of your garden will be the path system. As you step out of your door, where do you want your paths to take you? Deep into the yard, or straight to the barbecue? On a piece of paper, draw an outline of your yard and then create lines of the path or paths that will lead you to key destinations - and think of the elements you can dot along the way, such as unique plants or water features. Remember not to have any dead-end paths as visitors will hesitate to go down them.

4. Honour your past. All of us have childhood memories of plants and gardens somewhere in the back of our minds. Our sense of smell is located high up the nasal passage,

There are several seasons on the gardener's calendar and one of the longest ones is the "dreaming" season. We are currently in the middle of it. If you are a gardener, now is the time to dream of the gorgeous and productive garden that can be.

Everything that we know in the real world starts with a dream or, at the very least, an idea. So, it is with your garden.

Which raises the question, "How do I ensure success in creating the garden of my dreams?"

Here are the answers:

1. Start with what Mother Nature gave you. Whether you live with a condo/apartment with a balcony or acreage, the secret to finding the path to the fulfillment of your garden dreams is to watch nature. Take note of where the sun comes up (in the east), where it goes down on your property and how it illuminates your property mid day. Though the longest day of the year is 5 months away, mid day in June is not much different than mid day in January, except the sun is higher and stronger.

Also note how the wind moves across your property. West and north-west exposure will limit your plant selection

Rx: For Christmas make a Telephone Call

What's the most important gift you could give this holiday season? The Greek philosopher, Plato, once remarked, "Whoever likes being alone must be either a beast or a God". I'd say Amen to that statement. Crisis workers tell us that at this time of the year, depression and suicide risk is highest. So what can we all do to decrease holiday melancholy?

I've never seen it in the index of disease in medical texts, but loneliness should be listed in big print. It's an illness that sooner or later disrupts the lives of many people. Chopin, the great pianist and composer, must have been deeply depressed. He complained of being, "alone, alone, alone".

Some people deny loneliness. One man who hated mankind was found laughing to himself. "Why do you laugh?" he was asked. "There is no one with you". "That" he replied, "is just why I do". It is indeed a hardy soul who rejects companionship during the holidays, or any time of the year. We often make the error of believing that the rich and famous are immune to depression. But Winston Churchill, British Prime Minister during World War II, suffered from his "Black dog of depression". Repeated thoughts of self-destruction were never far away. This, in spite of the fact that during his early years in South Africa, he faced death's door in wartime several times.

During World War II, Sir Charles Wilson (later Lord Moran), was Churchill's personal physician and constant companion. Lord Moran later published a book, "Churchill, Taken from The Diaries of Lord Moran". It was criticized by the medical establishment for divulging personal information about a patient. But Moran defended the book arguing Churchill was a public figure and a part of history.

The book depicts how Churchill's "Black Dog" was always nearby. He told Lord Moran that he feared self-destructive urges when standing near the edge of a train platform when an express train was passing through. On another occasion he worried about standing by a ship's railing and looking down into the water. A sudden compulsion would end everything.

Only weeks ago I wrote about Anthony Bourdain, the famous TV personality, wealthy, a world traveler with many friends. He ended his life by hanging. To my knowledge no one knows why. Dante, the Italian philosopher, may have answered one of the reasons for holiday depression. He wrote, "There is no greater misery than remembering happier times". Another philosopher wrote that "man is forever terribly, utterly, alone".

So although this winter holiday season brings laughter and celebration for many, it is also a time of isolation and desperation for others, a moment bemoaning dreams that ended in failure, or loved ones no longer sitting around the dinner table.

Is there anything that we, the fortunate ones, can do to ease this melancholy at holiday time? I admit I am no expert on loneliness. The closest I get to this problem is sitting for hours at the computer writing this column. I've concluded after 45 years that it's a good place to visit, but a poor place to stay!

For many years I have kept a prescription pad that contains several telephone numbers. It is not a list of events I have to attend over the holidays. Rather, a list of patients and friends I want to call who had lost a loved one, or have encountered other emotional difficulties.

These are never easy calls. But the fact that an old friend remembered them and had not simply faded away, often eases their loss.

It's been said, "Hell is where you have an endless conversation with oneself". It's not a pleasant thought. But there is an easy solution, be it only temporary.

You do not need a doctor's prescription. But it is a prescription of sorts. And the best present you can give a lonely friend. Pick up the telephone and make the call.

This is the 43rd year I've had the pleasure of wishing you a healthy and happy holiday season.

The Skaters Waltz in Green Plaid

By Gloria Scribner

As I ponder the arrival of January and deep winter, my mindset arrives at Moonlight Lake, and it's 1962. Boredom from midwinter blues has set in and my 19 year old dream world is as frozen as last night's icicles. I take the youth group's advice and despondently dig out my skates. I even buy a pair of green plaid slacks to try to get my spirits to rise to the occasion. Our church was joining with the Reformed Baptist group and we were going skating at Louis Gosselin's Moonlight Lake, a few miles north of town. There was a warm little shack for putting on skates and to just get warm. A record player with loud speakers enhanced the evening as we skated, arm in arm, with anyone who asked us.

I remember being pulled up off a snowbank by a young man who asked me if I would like to skate. Duh! Why did he think I had skates on? Even though I was the proverbial wallflower, or should I say snowflower? I let him take my hand and onto the ice we went. The music played "The Skater's Waltz". The moon was shining and the rest is history. I married him a year later. As strict Baptists neither of us danced, but for the life of me I can't see the difference.

The earliest I recall skating was as a preschooler, on double bladed bob-skates. They strapped on over your boots. Later they were replaced by brown regular skates. Not too many girls wore figure skates yet, even though the fame of Barbara Ann Scott filled our heads with 'wanna be' as we attempted pirouettes, axels, and twirls. The boys were much braver and showed off their moves, much to our disgust. In the country none of us had even seen an indoor rink. We headed for the nearest pond or river, and after a big rain and freeze we headed for ditches or long strips of frozen pasture puddles. Boys made hockey rinks in their back yards and others always managed to find a patch of ice somewhere.

I recall skating on Humphrey's Pond when whole families turned out and spent the day. It seemed like that pond went on forever, and there were no T.V. sets to entice us home. We had no music

Rural Rides a Member of WA Transpo

Bens Story

Rural Rides has been providing transportation in the Salisbury Petitcodiac area since 2014 and in Tantramar since 2017 and is part of the WA Transpo expansion covering all of Westmorland and Albert Counties. Throughout that time, many clients, each with unique stories and situations, have used the volunteer driver service. One of those clients is Ben.

Ben has many health issues including vision loss. Unable to drive himself, he found it difficult to rely on family for transportation and had reached a point where he had run out of options. On a visit to the hospital, he was told about Rural Rides and how they might be able to provide the transportation he so desperately needed. Ben registered as a client with Rural Rides and has never looked back.

"I don't know what I would do without them" says Ben, "a fantastic service." Without the ability to drive and no affordable options for transportation, Ben relies on Rural Rides to get him to his appointments at his doctor's office, the hospitals and even to surgery in Halifax.

Faced with the need to go to Halifax and have surgery, Ben was very concerned about how he would get there. One of the volunteer drivers offered to take him down to his surgery requiring him to stay the night and bring Ben back home the following day. Several trips for pre-operative and post-operative appointments were also required and other wonderful volunteer drivers stepped up to help. Ben is extremely grateful for the kindness he has been shown by the volunteers and speaks highly of them. "They go above and beyond to look after me" says Ben "some of them have even become friends not just volunteers."

"The greatest part about this service is, it is worry free. I make a call a couple of days ahead to book my ride. The driver takes me where I need to go. I don't have to worry about navigating city streets, finding parking and then finding my way to the appointment from there. They drop me off at the door and when I am done, they are there to take me home. I just get in the car and it is all taken care of." said Ben. "It has been essential in helping me get the surgeries I need in Halifax and for ongoing medical appointments."

When asked if he would recommend the service to others, Ben said he absolutely would. "The worry is gone. This service has made a tremendous impact in my life." said Ben

If you or someone you know is struggling to find transportation, they can register for free as a client by calling 215-2100 or visiting our website at ruralridesnb.com.

We also always welcome new volunteer drivers to help keep the program running. Volunteers not only get the satisfaction of helping others but as Ben said, even making new friends. If you would like to volunteer, please call Kelly at 215-2100

From the Desk of Your MLA

Hon. Ross Wetmore, Gagetown - Petitcodiac

I hope the holiday season has been one of comfort and joy for you and yours. It is time to reflect on what we have accomplished and experienced in 2018 as we look ahead with hope and optimism to 2019.

In spring of 2018, we were again reminded of the unpredictable and awesome power of nature with the worst spring flooding in our part of New Brunswick in more than a generation. The devastation was so bad that many people have not yet fully recovered. In predictable New Brunswick fashion, the outpouring of assistance by friends, neighbours and complete strangers was inspiring.

In our province, 2018 will be remembered as the year that chocolate milk was outlawed and marijuana was legalized. It will be remembered as the year that Willie O'Ree was inducted into the Hockey Hall of Fame and it will be remembered for a provincial election that produced a minority government for the first time in 100 years.

I was honoured and humbled to be re-elected in Gagetown-Petitcodiac with the help of many wonderful volunteers.

On November 9th, I was sworn in as Minister of Agriculture, Aquaculture and Fisheries.

Balancing the duties of MLA and Minister will be a welcome challenge and I am happy to report that I will be assisted by Shawn Douthwright, who has agreed to take the job as my Executive Assistant.

Since becoming Minister, the last few weeks have been filled with meetings and conversations with many of our farming and fishing families. They have all been very kind, open and eager to share their dreams and challenges and the role government can play in helping them thrive.

I spent an afternoon visiting Beckelm Farms, a new 20 million dollar dairy farm located in Second North River. The new farm owned by John Schenkels and Ron Beckwith will milk 300 cows and have 350 dry cows. They hope to be milking by the middle of January.

Their new barn has 6 robot milking stations. Think about that for a moment-a 20 million dollar investment featuring robot milking stations. Our dairy farmers continue to make major investments as they keep pace with technology.

I was very pleased to be invited to speak at the Dairy Farmers of New Brunswick AGM and share the good news that the chocolate milk moratorium of the previous government would be lifted.

I also attended the AGM of Potatoes New Brunswick. Here again, the unpredictable power of nature had a negative impact. The wet October weather combined with the early freeze and snow in November resulted in the loss of some of the potato and soybean crops. Such is farming.

I am told of one Carleton County potato farmer who summed it all up in three words: 'It's a challenge'.

In closing, I want to wish you a Happy New Year. 2019 will bring its share of challenges and triumphs for all of us. Let's stay positive and help one another as best we can.

Let's Eat Out At JJ's Diner

Someone said to me the other day, "The season of overeating has officially begun!" Although one tries to eat a balanced diet all year, it seems that December is a time of indulgence; and it is hard to say no to peanut butter balls, shortbread cookies, brownies, Yule logs, and those pretty pink squares-If I could only eat one, but no, I have two or three. And let's not forget fruitcake-both light and dark versions dancing in my head! I read a jingle "How do you like your eggs? I like my eggs in a cake". If I were to make a New Year's resolution it would be to include more fruits and vegetables into my diet. Some resolutions are easier said than done. Hit the pause button here because the sun is beckoning and all this talk of balance reminds me to go for a walk. Charley and I recently attended a banquet at JJ's Diner in Sussex. You can see it from the highway as it is attached to the Fairway Inn and the address is 216 Roachville Road, phone 433-3471. There is much information on their website. They welcome bus tours and other groups so call for your reservations at 1-800-565-2260. We were in a decorated private dining room with a dance floor, live music and ample room for the buffet. The servers were so friendly and hardworking, taking good care of all 45 of us. We sat in tables of six which made us meet new people and oh, we enjoyed that part very much. I am always amazed at what we have in common if we only talk to one another (and then our differences become insignificant!) The meal was delicious-Chinese food, all you can eat, Buffet. This included rolls, tossed salad, egg rolls, chicken balls, rice and vegetables. I went back three times and I think I had 10 chicken balls! For dessert I had chocolate cake with boiled icing and Charley had chocolate mousse. I wasn't the only one at our table who went back for more. Everyone seemed to enjoy the feast. The diner itself is a step back in time to the 1950's. I picture teens in peddle pushers and flat shoes, dancing the twist and drinking root beer floats. Charley and I will check out that section soon. We enjoy eating good food to a song playing on the jukebox. So whether you are going into the diner or dining in the grand private room, I would suggest this place as a must try for eating out. And if you are like us, you will be back!

New Year's Poem

I have seen one full year go by,
three-hundred and sixty-five, oh my!

For it is here,
the last day of the year.

December, Thirty-first,

I'm going to burst!

To this year, I say good-bye,
for next year I see in my eye.

A year full of fun and joy,
I will certainly be older, oh boy!

So many days to be all mine,

I know for sure the sun will always shine!

I place myself in a fresh, new time,
where I make resolutions that are just fine.

Your Sleep and Mental Health

Obstructive Sleep Apnea (OSA) is a very common sleep disorder. It is marked by snoring, pauses in breathing, gasping for air and daytime sleepiness. Other factors in OSA include morning headaches, a large neck, being overweight and high blood pressure. Those with untreated OSA are at greater risk of high blood pressure, diabetes, heart attack, stroke and early death. But people experiencing sleep apnea are not just affected by its physical effects. They also experience mental health problems.

Having poor sleep quality can affect your mood and having a serious health condition itself is enough to cause some to feel depressed. Sleep apnea can interfere with mental health because of the reduced oxygen supply to the brain and frequent arousals from sleep. This alters brain function.

Not getting enough quality rest makes it very difficult to deal with routine daily task and cause anxiety. People with untreated sleep apnea also tend to feel anxious before bed as they know that they would like to have a restful sleep but will most likely spend the night tossing and turning without knowing the cause.

Even the most supportive spouse can get fed up by being awoken night after night with loud snoring and tossing and turning. This can cause sleeping in separate rooms, resentment and decreased opportunity for intimacy.

Dreams are an opportunity to process emotions and events of the day freeing up your brain to deal with tomorrow. People with sleep apnea are constantly being disturbed out of their dream at the pond, but someone kept a nice bonfire going to warm us as we sat on a log and our dads tightened our skates. I skated on Jones Lake in Moncton, and I laugh as I recall the nights we took my father to skate for the first time. If you've never seen an Englishman on skates you've missed a definite 'comedy of errors'. This one was hilarious! But, he was stubborn and determined. With an air of British 'stick-to-it-iveness' he finally prevailed and could remain on his feet for a few yards, with his daughters holding onto his arms of course. I no longer put on skates. I hung them up with my first pregnancy, and since it became a return event for nearly 20 years I never did put them on again.

But, sometimes on a moonlit night as I glance across a silver field, I'm almost sure I can hear the hauntingly beautiful music resonating through the night.

"You were the beautiful lady in blue, I was in Heaven just dancing with you. Come back, blue lady, come back. And don't be blue anymore."

I wonder if they still play the Skater's Waltz in January? Oh yes, those green plaid slacks would be 56 years old now. I long-ago made them into a vest and shorts for a 1 year old red-headed boy. Then, just last year, I gave them to him for his grandson.

How our Salisbury Wetlands contributes two routes to the Maritime Marsh Monitoring Program

Bill Winsor, a member of the Salisbury Naturalist Club will present on Tuesday January 8 at 7 pm at the Parks & Leisure Office. Bill has been leading the naturalist club for the past 3 years in the Bird Studies Canada Marsh Monitoring Program at Salisbury's two wetlands including the Highland Park Wetland and the Government

Virginia Rail

"The presentation will give a little background on how volunteerism in Citizen Science can facilitate the collection of baseline environmental data and make it possible to measure how our natural world is changing. The Maritime Marsh Monitoring Program is the most recent member of a series of similar wetlands monitoring programs that are almost country wide. I will provide a description of how one volunteer can contribute to the data collection for the Program. Though this Program is just beginning; I will show the kind of results that will be available with some extracts from a report of the longest running Great Lakes Marsh Monitoring Program that has been ongoing since 1996."
