

Long-Distance Mutual Aid:

NB Volunteer Fire Department Helps NL Firefighters

The volunteer fire department in Salisbury is paying it forward to a department in need in Canada's north. Salisbury Fire Rescue is giving a complete set of Hurst "Jaws of Life" vehicle extrication tools to the Sheshatshiu Fire Department, located 40 km northwest of Happy Valley-Goose Bay, Labrador. Firefighters in both Sheshatshiu and in neighbouring North West River are responsible for a 40-kilometre section of rural highway, but rely on extrication equipment that must be brought in from Goose Bay. The much-needed donation is a 20-year-old set of Jaws of Life tools that were recently replaced by Salisbury Fire Rescue and have become surplus. Sheshatshiu and North West River and their fire departments cooperate on a regular basis, and these rescue tools will provide life-saving services to residents of their region. Sheshatshiu is a community of 900 residents of the Mushuau First Nation Innu. North West River is a community of 500 people and was featured in the Discovery Channel television program Last Chance Garage in 2017 and 2018. Salisbury's volunteer fire department led by Fire Chief David Bannister consists of 24 members and boasts five response vehicles including its new "Silver Fox," a 2019 Freightliner Multi-Purpose Pumper-Tanker. The department's origins date back to 1973.

Salisbury Fire Rescue, after recently upgrading its Jaws of Life vehicle extrication tools, has donated its surplus Hurst Jaws of Life gear to the fire department in Sheshatshiu, NL. Despite serving a vast region in Labrador, firefighters in Sheshatshiu and in neighbouring North West River have had to rely on borrowing similar equipment located 40 km away in Goose Bay. Havelock's Faith Steeves, a forward with the University of Prince Edward Island Panthers women's hockey team, has been named the Atlantic University Sport female athlete of the week.

The fourth-year veteran scored four goals - tying the UPEI school record - and added an assist in an 8 - 0 win over the Universite de Moncton Aigles Bleues in Game 1 of an AUS quarterfinal playoff series.

Steeves had four shots in the Panthers' 1-0 loss to UdeM in Game 2.

Seniors Learning on the Go Part 4

On February 4th, the fourth and final their responsibilities are. Did you know activity in the Seniors Learning on the Go project funded by the Government of Canada New Horizons Grant for Seniors took place. Each of the four activities or trips involved a learning component combined with fun and socializing. The final trip was to the Coverdale Centre in Riverview for a day of learning. Seniors traveled by bus from Albert County along Route 114 and a second bus brought seniors in from Havelock. Petitcodiac and Salisbury.

The day began with an informative presentation by Erin King of the New Brunswick Financial and Consumer Services Commission. Seniors in attendance learned about ongoing scams in the area, how they work, what to watch for and how to protect themselves. "If it sounds too good to be true, it probably is."They also learned about the importance of establishing a "Power of Attorney" - how to select someone, what to expect and what you can assign power of attorney on a short-term basis if you are going in for a surgery or treatment and will be unable to look after your affairs for a specific time period?

Erin finished out her talk with information on elder financial abuse

The Doctor Game W. Gifford-Jones M.D. Why Don't We Send a Planeload of Medi-C Plus to China?

One of my sons has been in the travel this medication does ease some of business for years. Today he said, "We've cancelled all of our tours to China due to the coronavirus scare." I replied, "That's unfortunate, but if we don't send tourists just now, perhaps we should be sending Medi-C Plus. I've been arguing for years that high doses of vitamin C is a lifesaver in boosting immune system performance. "The question arose, what would I do if a family member contracted the coronavirus?

Several university professors and international viral disease experts reported ways to treat coronavirus infection. Their unanimous opinion was that high doses of intravenous vitamin C would be effective in controlling infection.

In China many people have decided to use Chinese remedies to treat a dangerous and potentially lethal virus. Chinese dispensaries report they're running out of honey suckle, the dried fruit of the weeping forsythia, eupatorium, and patchouli. And other pharmacies have been cleaned out of a variety of Chinese herbs.

Apparently Chinese authorities have authorized the use of these remedies to treat coronavirus. It may be that the symptoms associated with the infection, but people are still dying. There is a great irony in this situation. The majority of vitamin C sold in North America is imported from China! Medi-C Plus is no exception. There is no concern about the quality of the product. Assured Naturals, a manufacturer in Vancouver, uses sophisticated spectrometry to detect one billionth particle of lead or mercury contamination in imported material. If detected the product is destroyed.

The other irony? Medi-C Plus powder is available in North America and helps to build up immunity, offering protection in the event coronavirus strikes. But vitamin C is not being used in China for the same purpose. (See my website for the dosage schedules I suggested .Medi-C Plus and other brands are available in Health Food Stores in Canada or through Amazon in the U.S. I hope that coronavirus infection will soon subside. But I doubt this will happen quickly and more North Americans will die needlessly. This is a tragic and unconscionable situation for

What is a Fidget Quilt?

A fidget quilt or activity blanket is a small lap quilt that provides sensory and tactile stimulation for the restless hands of someone with Alzheimer's and/or other forms of dementia, ADD, or an autism spectrum disability.

Fidget quilts calm individuals by giving them something to do with their hands especially in an unfamiliar hospital or care home.

The New Brunswick Women's Institute has been holding workshops across the province to make fidget quilts to be distributed in homes, hospitals, special care homes, schools, etc. The next workshop will be held Friday, March 13th or storm date of Saturday, March 14th, 2020 at 9:00 a.m. at the St. Mary's Anglican church, 770 McEvoy Street, Fredericton. This event is totally open to everyone whether a WI member or not. All materials for the quilts will be provided. You can confirm your attendance by emailing nbwi@nb.aibn.com or calling the NBWI office at 506-454-0798. (Two gals from Elgin took part in a recent workshop.)

Google "fidget quilts " for lots of information on how to make these specials gifts. You will be inspired to make one to share.

While not a WI sponsored event, the EWI will be attending the International Women's Day celebration to be held in Elgin at the fellowship hall of the Baptist church on Saturday March 7 from 1-4.

Come and join us for an afternoon of fun, friendship, entertainment, education, music, refreshments and door prizes.

Everyone welcome. No admission charge. Donations accepted.

Hello friends of the Elgin Eco Association and friend of nature. As we have done in the past several years the EEA has once again organized a small Winter Fest. Many went to snowshoe the Mapleton Acadian Nature Trail, some did the long forest train or small trail in the village or skated to their hearts content. After they could stop in for cake, ice cream and hot chocolate. Our small community can not compete with the larger municipalities. The EEA is 100% dependant on volunteers for that reason it will be an enjoyable small community event. If you love the outdoors, Elgin is the place for you. Thanks to our committed volunteers that made Winter Fest possible. Some people or families enjoy the park and skating rink to hold family gatherings and or birthday parties. Most are not aware a short hiking trail is directly behind the park. This year we hope to add a few new features to our park. We believe in an outdoor classroom experience. If we are successful with our proposals, we are hopeful at least some of it will materialize. Many efforts are made to increase awareness of the opportunities available for outdoor activities in the Elgin Area. With the upcoming opening of the store in Elgin all the possibilities of increased awareness of our area will grow.

The ice rink is one of these essential volunteer commitments. Every time after every snow fall the ice rink will need to be cleaned of. Often during the day. We appreciate anybody that is able and willing to lend a hand with this work. The kids make great use of this ice rink and we are glad to have invested in making it work so well this year. A special Thank You to Milton Goggin who has taken on the brunt of the work to keep the ice rink in tip top shape. It is no easy task. We will post "Help needed to clear the ice rink" on our Facebook page.

This year again we have applied for summer students. We hope the government recognizes the importance of rural community developments and its benefits with granting us some summer students.

Our work with the NBCC students is ongoing and we are looking forward to the results from the marketing strategy. This is very exciting because we do not have the time or knowledge to do this ourselves. Currently seven students are working on behalf of the EEA. They are also working on reviewing our website, current updates are not available

Our last meeting was postponed for a week due to the inclement weather. If this happens we will notify our members and also post on Facebook.

Our next meeting is on March 5th in the seniors hall starting 7pm.Everyone welcome.

Lunch was prepared and served by Foods of the Fundy Valley. It was an Asian themed meal with several gluten free options so all could enjoy.

Following a healthy lunch, the afternoon presenter, Michelle Lajoie, a dietician from the Atlantic Superstore, talked about food safety, food preparation for one or two, meal prep and portions as well as healthy eating.

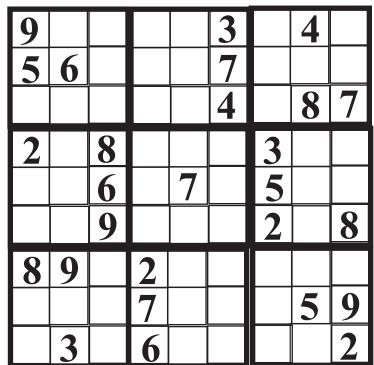

After a full day of information, door prizes were drawn for and the seniors returned home on their respective buses.

Feedback from the seniors for all the trips in the series has been very positive. It has been especially appreciated that the entire program, including transportation, was free, allowing many who do not normally get a chance to participate in day trips, an opportunity to enjoy as well.

Our mission at Urban/Rural Rides is to provide transportation to those who need it. While the bus trips were more recreational and informational than a necessity, it is important for people to get out and socialize and enjoy time with others to fight feelings of isolation and loneliness. Our volunteer drivers help do that every day when they give someone a ride. If you have a few hours a month or more and want to be part of a team on a mission to help others get where they need to go, please call 215-2100 or email r.r.ruralrides@gmail.com for more information. Drivers need to be over the age of 21, have a reliable automobile, carry $2 million liability (we will reimburse the extra charge up to $80 per year), sign an oath of confidentiality and clear a police record check.

Sense and "Senility"

By Gloria Scribner

For many a year, thro' endless age (if they are blest to live long enough), the elderly, in many cases, have succumbed to what we've become accustomed to referring to as "senility", or "dementia", or "Alzheimers", or known by many other names: a state of mind devoid of reality.

Many folk feel uncomfortable around the victims of such obviously "other world" behavior. The memory goes, the sense of time and place become oblivious, and preoccupations with talking to ones self or day-dreaming into a catatonic state start with lapses in judgement and confusion or delusion.

I'm no expert on the human mind, but like everyone else, I do possess one.

I've come to know my own quite well over the years and have spent moments almost out of it, changing it, making it up and filling it with information, ideas, regrets, hopes and sorrows, I've involuntarily let the world mess with it, beauty blow it and love lose it. I've let God shape it - not with genius or saintliness, but by rebuilding it, when forces had almost reduced it to nothingness; healing it when love and caring concern wrought anxiety and depression; molding it as I drank in the miraculous; and protecting it when human innuendo walked over it and the long gnarled fingers of evil taunted it. God put dreams inside it and things like "hope" and "faith", while with the patience of unrelenting love He spoke goodness and light to it.

My brain is like a "crazy-quilt" with scraps of this and that, bits of every colour, of strengths and weaknesses, joys and sorrows, matching and clashing, and overlapping and fraying, but still sewn and held together by the Master's hand with threads of His heartstrings and batting of angel-hair. I share my warmth in the darkest recesses of sinister places, in homelessness, on sidewalk or sanctuary. My mind has been the receptor of beauty and ugliness, love and hate, dread and elation, music and silence, heights of joy and depths of despair. It's taken me to the stars and dragged me through gutters. It exalted itself and reached for the devine. It tasted heaven and recoiled at hell, yet clung to immortality like a mother's skirts and in the end longed only for God.

My mind, consisting of every book I've ever read, every word I've ever spoken or heard, every colour, sound, fear and thrill, is still "my mind". When time has squeezed it shut and shrunk its capacity to reason - my thoughts, my dreams, my longings, will still exist, for space is endless, God's grace matchless. And as His arm around my shoulders leads this "crazy" lady home "where angels fear to tread", my thoughts will join the splendour of Himself as they echo through the halls of time "who's there?" and always His voice will answer: "I am".

Historical Tid - Bits

From the Desk of Your MLA

Hon. Ross Wetmore, Gagetown - Petitcodiac

The next several weeks hold the potential for us to display our New Brunswick spirit of community and sense of duty to our neighbours and to our province.

Weather forecasters are suggesting we may be facing another active flood season. Again, this year there will likely be flood damage along our rivers.

Political forecasters are suggesting we may be facing a provincial election campaign at the same time.

New Brunswickers may at once be asked to help flood victims with their time and resources and to cast their votes for the future of our province.

My colleagues and I will be pressed to provide an accounting for our first year and a half in government and to assure voters that following the path set forth in November of 2018 is the best direction for today and for future generations of New Brunswickers.

We will be promoting a government that proved responsive to the immediate needs of flood victims by increasing advance payments substantially.

The tireless work by our Premier defending our NB Forest Industry on the international front will undoubtedly be a point we raise. As well, the five-year freeze of crown wood and the doubling of protected natural areas points to a government that understands sustainable, responsible resource development and protection.

Should an election be called, we will repeat with pride how our balanced budgets and payments against our debt have prevented a credit downgrade and in fact led to a credit upgrade for New Brunswick.

As Premier Higgs has observed, we'd rather pay for mental health care than for interest.

On the topic of health care, it seems clear there is consensus that we have a crisis in health care that must be addressed. We cannot remain inactive in the face of the looming retirement of so many health care workers. With agreement that we must make changes, I would argue our government has proven willing to tackle this challenge despite the difficult path ahead.

I believe we have a positive case to make with the things we have done and are in the process of doing as a minority government.

Of course, I would prefer we have no flood and no election. Time will tell. I will close by reminding you the March break from school is in days and there will be a lot more children out and about throughout the day. Be extra aware as you drive along our streets and roads.

Thanks as always for your encouragement and support. Please continue to visit me on Facebook.

Written the late Mrs. Evans Steeves of Elgin and submitted by Idella Lazar

Life on a farm in an isolated N. B. Community in the late 1800's and early 1900's was, for the average such family, far from easy. Many households had very little or no money but somehow by hard work, trading farm produce for groceries or other "store-bought" necessities, selling turkeys in city markets at Christmas, and by exchanging seasonal labor with friends, they met and even overcame the difficulties. One might be distressfully lacking in material things but one could balance this when family love and thoughtfulness prevailed.

Those of our readers who as children may have found themselves in these circumstances but now enjoy the conveniences and comforts that came with the passing years, will read with great interest what has been sent to the Memories Column by Mrs. Evans Steeves, Elgin, and which appears below. These readers will themselves be taken on a memory visit to their earlier-day homes, family circles and friends, and experiences.

As Mrs. Steeves remembers -

"We had no radio but I remember a family who did. Sometimes Dad would harness the team, take a wagon and we would all go to hear the radio. We used earphones, and I well remember the static when putting them on my head. Then, to our great astonishment and wonder, we heard. He got a loudspeaker, and everyone in the room could hear at once. We went again and it was true. Sound came from a large horn. It must have been run by battery.

The roads were not ploughed. People didn't drive cars in the winter, they would be jacked up off the tires. One man was responsible for a certain length of road, to break it out after a big snow storm. Each farmer was to drive over the road with his team. Dad would braid the horses' tails and put some sort of a band on them. They looked nice and it kept them up out of the snow. On cold or stormy days, or if the horses had to stand long, he had plaid storm blankets for them. There were night blankets, or barn blankets too.

At the church where we were taken, not sent, there was a long horse shed open all along one side where the horses stood, usually blanketed on cold days. Once during the service Dad would go out and check on his horse or team. Dad liked horses and was a good teamster. I believe I heard he never put too much on the sled or wagon, or got the team stuck so he had to unload, yet he hauled good loads and did his part. He left home some years after Christmas to haul logs. He stayed at a lumber camp in the woods. He might walk home on Sundays but the team stayed at the camp. He loved bells and had four on the harness in the winter. We would all be excited when we expected him home, and we could hear him before we saw him coming.

Work was scarce and pay was poor. It was the time for tramps and we had several come to the house and ask for food. Our home was a place for young fellows who came from England and Scotland to stay and board. Probably they got some money for clothes and tobacco. In exchange for a few barn chores, they had a place to sleep.

Our school was a one-room school at Goshen Corner, over a mile from our home. Certain times of the year the water ran across the road. My older brother sometimes said "Get your feet wet so we don't have to go to school". We had to go through woods on our way to school - that was the warm part of the road. For a fair distance we could not see a house. After we got through the stretch of woods, we went through a covered bridge. Ah!" Covered bridges are dear to my heart! This one crossed the Kennebecasis. On our way home we would linger in the covered bridge and climb up inside it. Once we saw a moose just beyond the bridge so we hurried back and climbed up inside and waited. We feared it. Then we got down and ran for home."

Attention all local garden enthusiasts! If you have not done so already, please join our Facebook page, "Petitcodiac and Area Garden Club" which is currently at 111 members. Or, if you do not use Social Media, please contact one of the Garden Club members listed below and we will ensure you are invited to our meetings.

A meeting was held on Monday, Feb 3rd and several areas of interest were discussed. We will proceed with applying for several Community grants with the Community Garden on Maple Street as our initial focus.Mid-July is the tentative date for our 2nd Annual Petitcodiac and Area Garden Tour.The group felt this is the best time of year to show off our gardens. The date will be confirmedat a later meeting. We are looking for flower or vegetable gardens to display during the tour. Please advise one of our members listed below if you would like to be includedthis year.

Also discussedwere ideas to celebrate a Victory Garden celebrating the 75th Anniversaryof the Netherland's Liberation and participating during the Inspire Festival with a workshop on cut flower arrangements. Volunteers are welcome!

We generated several ideas for hosting events at the Community Garden locatedon Maple Street such as: Seed swap; plant sale or auction; wild plant information; herbal medicine walks and talk; fungus identification and other wild edibles. Also, companion planting; barter system (share and trade vegetableswith other gardeners); composting and benefits of reducing, reusing and recycling; pest management; growing sustainable gardens; encourage healthy eating habits andhow to include youth, seniors and people of all ages in the Community Garden. is open to all gardeners! If you have wanted to try your hand at gardening, but do not have the room, have a problem with deer or the means to till it, we have a wonderful opportunity for you! For a $10.00 key deposit which you will return at harvest time, you can have your own plot(s). The plots are usually staked and roped offto 10'X 20', with two plots to a row. There are currently three raised beds with more in the works if we are approved for a grant. The area is fenced, and the gates are locked to keep out the deer. The plots are tilled, and compost, tools and water are provided! We ask participants to clean their plots at harvest time and place the material near the big gate. There is a locked shed with tools and a wheelbarrow plus a pile of compost for use if needed. The area will be tilled in the spring by the Works Crew, but you are required to maintain your plots which includes weeding. Please contact Janice at the Village Office at 756-3142 to reserve your spot.

Tax Free Savings Accounts

A Tax Free Savings Account, commonly known as a TFSA, was introduced by the government in 2009. The purpose of a TFSA is to provide a means to invest your money without paying tax on the growth within the account or on withdrawals. Each year, the government sets a limit on how much you are permitted to contribute to your TFSA. In 2020, you may contribute $6000 and you may also carry forward any unused contribution room from the previous years. In 2020, if you have been over the age of 18 since 2009 you could have contributed up to $69,500 over the years. Your contributions will not be tax deductible for income tax purposes and investment income, including capital gains, will not be taxed, even when withdrawn.

A TFSA can be used for any purpose. For you, that may be saving for a major purchase, education, a trip or an emergency fund. It is simply a way for you to contribute monthly or annually to a savings account that is not used for your day to day living. ATFSA is registered in your name and you are permitted to have more than one however be aware your annual maximum is a total across all TFSA's, so you need to keep track of how much you are contributing to each account. You are also allowed to transfer and merge TFSA's with the help of your financial advisor. CRA keeps record of how much contribution room you have available.

The advantage of a TFSA is that you can withdraw the money at any time, subject to investment type, without the withdrawal being taxed, and you can withdraw for any purpose which is important to you. On withdrawals, you do have to remember based on your contribution room, if you withdraw funds in one year, you may have to wait until the next year to redeposit the funds.

Sun Life

Your TFSA can be held in a variety of investments, just like an RRSP. A TFSA investment may hold mutual funds, segregated funds, GIC's, stocks and bonds.

Another important item to remember about a TFSA is that neither income earned nor withdrawals will affect eligibility for federal income tested benefits and credits, such as OAS. Also, upon your death, your TFSA can be transferred directly to your spouse without affecting their contribution room. And, you can name a beneficiary on the account in most cases, which helps avoid probate fees.

TFSA's are a great way to save for a future purpose, whether shorter term or long term and you can decide to contribute to them once, monthly or annually, whatever suits your budget. Submitted by Carla Ayles

We've got a brand new, modern car In place of our old Ford; It's automatic to the hilt And welcomes you aboard. No gears to shift, no choke to pull They say it cannot stall. A finger works the steering wheel And brother! That's not all -There's carpet underneath your feet That car sure has class; For when the windshield needs a rub It sneezes on the glass. I felt so bad for our old car When that car came to stay. Her tail pipe dropped Between her wheels As she sadly slunk away The Salesman said she steered so hard Her valves just must be ground -The sparkplugs missed, and she leaked oil So many faults he found. But that old car had served us well, There's no use to pretend I didn't weep a little bit I felt we'd lost a friend. -Author unknown

Margaret was widowed at a young age, and worked hard at cleaning various homes throughout Petitcodiac, making her even more particular when it came time for her to have a housekeeper. You could always find Margaret in her rocking chair enjoying old country music or knitting (though she never could turn a heel). Margaret will be remembered most for her humour, she loved to laugh, something she shared with her sister Gertha. If the two of them are laughing in heaven like they did here on earth, they would likely be kicked out for the commotion.

Sharon (Steve McLean) and Wyman (Mandy) Murphy, Ryan (Krissy), Travis and Adam (Jenny) MacLeod, Nathan LeGresley (Sandra), Tanya Zimmermann (Jay), Caden and Connor MacLeod; great-grandchildren, Drew and Sydney MacLean, Madison, Austin, Sarah, Ethan, Lily, Haley (Alex), Liam, and Wyatt MacLeod, Chaeli and Ayrton Zimmerman; siblings, Ronald (Alma), George (Arlene), and Arnold (Sheila) Mundle, Dorothy Buckley (the late Roland) and Beulah (Bonar) Morton; many nieces and nephews.

You fight back many a bitter tear And wish that you could die Or someone would just understand Your heart is broke in two But you believe although you grieve It's all that you can do Well - time may help, and the pain you feel Fade into yesterday But the scars that sorrow leaves behind Will last - unless you "pray" Each morning someone watches you Each night He waits again For just a word. Have you not heard? He longs to take your pain If you just turn and let it go And whisper "Lord, come by" "I can't be what I need to be, No matter how I try The world, it seems, is so unkind And there's no magic pill. To soothe the hurt that's in my heart Please - Help me, if you will.' You need not be a scholar, nor An expert anything (No big degree in Theology) To come before the King The pain you feel today Is "Help me Master - please" With hands that gave you life gardener, expert author, broadcaster, tree advocate and Member of the Order of Canada. His son Ben is a gardener fourth-generation urban and graduate of University of Guelph and Dalhousie University in Halifax. Follow them at markcullen.com, @markcullengardening, and on Facebook.

The better we know trees, the deeper our understanding of the natural world.

Trees are to the land, what whales are to the sea. Big, imposing and by their very stature they influence many parts of our lives.

The recently published book Around the World in 80 Trees, written by the Brit Jonathan Drori, illuminates the value of trees by informing us about their unusual character.

For every tree species there are many stories. Drori distills the fascinating history and lore of trees into a book that is hard to put down. One or two pages for each tree species.

Here are the highlights from our point of view.

Sugar Maple Acer saccharum

Even if you can't identify this tree, you will undoubtably know the sweet syrup that is created from its sap. Perhaps less well known are the fabulously bright yellow and red/orange colours that the leaves of the Sugar Maple glow late each fall. This colour is present in the leaves of the maple all season long. Through the power of the sun, the natural process of photosynthesis creates chlorophyll which produces the green leaves through the growing season. As Drori explains, "Leaves also produce orange and yellow antioxidant chemicals - carotenes and xanthophylls to mop up any highly reactive oxygen produced as a by-product of photosynthesis." As chlorophyll is broken down and reabsorbed late in the season the leaves' green colour disappears..... Voila: the leaves change colour.

Our cold Canadian evening temperatures and sunny days in autumn are the key to bright, crisp fall colours. Which is why these same trees do not produce the same intense show when planted in milder climates

Hemlock

Tsuga heterophylla (western) and Tsuga canadensis (eastern)

The evergreen hemlock tree is a very useful tree indeed. "Tender branches with soft foliage were used as bedding; bent trunks were carved into large feast dishes; bark tannin treated leather and made a reddish dye used as a cosmetic blusher." Perhaps the western hemlock has gained recent notoriety mostly as a treatment for cancer.

The versatile hemlock is a wonderful understory tree that thrives in shady places. The eastern hemlock matures to over 12 meters and makes a great specimen tree on a large suburban lot. Next time you venture into the woods, take note of the hemlock that grow seemingly in mid air, with a monstrous gap between the main trunk and the roots that drive into the soil. This is the result of an interesting habit hemlock have of germinating on a rotting stump or fallen tree. As the roots expand around the wood, it eventually rots away and leaves the roots hanging. Fun. And spooky.

Horse Chestnut Aesculus hippocastanum

Grab some chestnuts that have fallen fresh to the ground come October and try to resist rubbing your thumb over their smooth chestnut (!) coloured skin and throwing them as far as you can. Come spring, try to resist not stopping to observe the amazing infrastructure of the candelabra flowers.

This member of the orchid family has flowers to match. All you must do is stop long enough to observe the delicate florets in their fullness.

During WWII, Anne Frank wrote about the chestnut tree in her backyard, which was a silent marker of seasonal change while she hid from the Nazis. While the tree died in 2010, saplings grown from its seeds were distributed as beacons of optimism.

The Linden (Tilia) is a versatile tree that produces an abundance of sweet lime flowers in May that make a soothing tea. Bees are attracted to these flowers too, sometimes in such numbers that the whole tree hums, producing a coveted, sweet honey.

Beech (Fagus) is the lover's tree. Carve your initials in it along with your sweetheart and watch it grow. On your 50th anniversary you can renew your vows under a mighty tree. We are not recommending you deface a public tree, but you could carve a message into your own beech. And note that the message will not grow higher as the tree matures. One more little tidbit of tree trivia that you will learn from this book.

There are 75 other trees listed and described using stories that are engaging. The book makes for light and enlightened reading.

several reasons.

"Credite rebus" (believe the facts) is the answer to the coronavirus, but the facts are being ignored. I'm not an expert on viral diseases. But last week'sa rticle shared the opinions of international authorities that high doses of intravenous vitamin C is an effective treatment.

I say this with great reluctance. But if a family member of mine died due to coronavirus infection, after a doctor refused to use IVC, I would challenge his or her treatment in a court of law. I would win. Credible research cannot be ignored.

The fact is that people are still dying of other viral diseases, such as influenza and pneumonia, because IVC is still a taboo treatment within the medical establishment. Discussion of the coronavirus continues mention of the therapeutic value of intravenous vitamin C. History has already proven the naysayers wrong, Dr. Frederick R.

in the media. But I have not heard

Klenner, a U.S family doctor, did it in 1950 when he treated 60 polio patients with IVC and none developed paralysis. Yet when he presented these cases at an international medical meeting, no one listened.

All this reminds me of Sir Oliver Cromwell, the Lord Protector of England. During a heated discussion he remarked to his parliamentary critics, "In the bowels of Christ, think it possible that you may be mistaken?" Sign-up at www.docgiff.com to
